INTERESTING ACCOUNT OF A NEW AMERICAN INDUSTRY.

It Takes 64,000,000 Pounds of Cocoon Produce the Baw Silk Used in This Country Acqually Secretary Rusk's Busy Department,

The sum of $20,000 was appropri ated for the use of the Agricultural Department this year, for the encouragement and advancement of silk culture in America. A large consignment of silk-worm eggs, just received from abroad, will be distributed gratuitously to all persons desiring them who make proper application to the Secretary of Agriculture The distribution of these eggs takes place in the sprine, just at the time when the feed plants are leating out Sitk worms can be successfully fed only upon the leaves of the osage orange (the common hedge plant of the West) or those of the mulberry. Persons who have neither these at their disposal should not apply, as it is impossible to raise the worm without them. Accompanying each shipment of eggs will be a supply of pemphlets and circulars of instruction upon the subject, so that the best re-sults obtainable may be realized from the efforts of the Department in this

The silk division of the Agricultural Department is situated in the Industrial Annex, on Twelfth street, and is well worth a visit. It is in charge of Mr. Philip Walker, a gentleman of thorough experience in the business, both theoretically and practically, having scen a number of years' service in some of the largest silk mills of France. The division was inaugurated in 1884, and its establishment was the first active step taken in America toward the prac-tical encouragement of silk culture. At first but $10,000 was appropriated annually for the purpose. This amount nually for the purpose. This amoun significantly small when the importance of the object is seriously considered.

Regarding the future of the silk in-dustry in this country, Mr. Walker said that he had recently been before the Committee of Ways and Means giving his views on matters concerning tariff regulations on silk and that he would rather not touch upon the point, as he desired that nothing he might say would be construed as intended to influence or anticipate the conclusious of that committee. The fact is well known, however, that there is no tariff on raw silk while the manufacturers are heavily protected.

Mr. Walker said: "This division is more in the nature of an experimental manufacturing concern than anything else. It was established principally with a view to perfecting machinery for the automatic reeling of raw silk from the cocoon. We think that we are in a fair way to get a good machine, and, if we do, it will be the first one ever successfully operated in the world. The principle of the ma chine we got from an American named Serrell, living in France. Our im provements have been entirely in the mechanical details of the machine. We have had running since 1886 a silk filature, which is open to the public. "We buy American ecocoons from all over the country. They are raised a little bit in almost every State and Territory. We bought this year from forty-two States and Territories. principal States, however, are Kansas, Misseuri, Ohio and Illinois, in the order named. Kansas has a State appropriature, which is the cause of its prominence in the industry.

'We produced this year about 19,000 pounds of silk cocoons in the country. whereas it would take about 64,000,000 of pounds to produce the raw silk we consume in this country annually.

We all begin raising silkworms here this year about the middle of April, and for a month after that we shall have silkworms on exhibition down stairs. This will be the first time worms have been placed down stairs where peopl can see them and in all ages. A place has been arranged for them. Heretofore only a few have been raised for our own experimental purposes and they were not exhibited."

When the silk section of the Department was first started $1.15 per pound was the ruling price in America for silk cocoons. The Department established that price at the time, and have paid it ever since. The price here does ot fluctuate like it does in some coun tries because of the limited market, but nevertheless it has gone far below $1.15, and remained there much of the time. but it is now slightly in advance of the Government price. The object of the Department is to maintain a good and steady price for cocoons, but not such a price as will be considered a bounty.

A cocoon is a small globular, fuzzy object about the size and shape of an ordinary double-jointed peanut, which it very much resembles a few feet away. Cocoons are either a light cream cold or white, and it is the shell of the cocoon or peanut that is silk and is woven by the worm from one single thread. The end of this thread, which s no bigger than that of a spider's web is placed around a wheel and the shell unraveled like our grandmothers unraveled old-fashioned woolen stockings. When a reel is filled the skein is doubled and twisted, and then the raw silk is ready for market. The creamcolored cocoon produces raw silk of the same color, while the others produce white skeins. The natural cream color of the sik is not fast, and soon changes to white. Cocoons must be assorted, cleaned and the fuzy taken from them before they are ready to be unraveled or wound into skeins.

A new room has recently been prepared for hatching eggs, where worms will soon be rapidly produced. The place is very light and well ventilated. and to this room the public is not ad-

When they start in for pleasure they throw their whole souls and hearts into the pursult, and an apt illustration of this national trait was given at the Carroll Institute Hall last ght when the "Deutsche Dramatische Gesellschaft' entertained its friends at a masked ball. Before 9 o'clock the hall was filled with the gay masque raders, and a joiller crowd could scarcely be imagined. The scene was brilliant in the extreme. No kaleidoscope ever presented more intricate changes of tints and colors than the merry throng of fancifully bedecked pleasure seekers that moved through the mazes of Terpsichore to the inspir
